DESCRIPTION OF THE TASKS TO BE PERFORMED IN THE PROJECT/KNOWLEDGE TO BE ACQUIRED AND/OR SKILLS TO BE DEVELOPED

The project financed by this job offer includes several behavioural tests, with a large number of mice from different conditions, and a large amount of data will be obtained from the "-omics" analyses (mRNAseq, metagenomics of the microbiota, metabolomics and lipidomics) proposed in the project. All this implies a heavy workload, both experimental, bioinformatics and statistical analysis.

Therefore, the contracted researcher will participate in the following tasks proposed in the project:

- ✓ Maintenance of colonies of Gal-4 knockout mice. Genotyping and planning of crosses.
- ✓ Extraction and processing of fresh mouse tissue.
- ✓ Purification of mRNA.
- ✓ Perfusion and fixation of mice.
- ✓ Tissue extraction for histochemistry.
- ✓ Histochemistry and immunofluorescence.
- ✓ Microscopy and image analysis
- ✓ Mouse blood and faeces sampling.
- ✓ Behavioural testing
- ✓ Analysis of results and manuscript preparation.

MOTIVATION

The person hired will work as a member of the research team of the project "Memory disorders, anxiety and depression induced by alterations of the microbiota-gut-brain axis. From "-omics" to Behaviour" funded by the AEI within the programme Proyectos de Generación del Conocimiento (Ref. PID2021-125428OB-I00).

In this project we propose to unravel the mechanisms by which specific alterations at the intestinal level produce cognitive and mood disorders, using galectin-4 KO mice as a model and taking into account the variable of age.

To this end, we will detect functional alterations in the prefrontal cortex by in vivo electrophysiological measurements, as well as by biochemical methods. We will explore whether these correlate with cognitive or emotional modifications in specific behavioural tests. In addition, we will investigate the involvement of the gut in the neurological phenotype by comparatively analysing gene expression (mRNAseq) and gut microbiota (metagenomics), as well as metabolites present in serum and brain tissue (metabolomics and lipidomics) that may affect nervous system function.

The experimental designs, proposed techniques and bioinformatics analyses included in this project are very complex and technologically sophisticated, and therefore require the contracted researcher to have proven experience in all the aspects detailed in the "Previous experience" section, as well as a strong motivation and interest in the field of application.
